Minnesota State Colleges and Universities

Introduction and Transaction Types

Introduction

Program approval refers to notifications and approval applications that affect the inventory of programs for the Minnesota Colleges and Universities System.

These notifications and applications fall into the following three categories.

- New Programs
- Program Closure
- Program Modifications

Within each of these three categories, program transactions are further classified by type. Definitions for these transactions types, as used in the Academic Program Application Summary report, are defined at the end of this report.

A. Transaction Types: New Programs

1. New Programs. New programs are programs that are not delivered by the institution at the time of application. In addition to an institution, new programs are identified by an eight-digit code , an award and a location.

2. Redesigned Program. Redesigned programs occur when courses from one or more existing programs are reconfigured to create a new program.

3. Replicated and Relocated Programs. Institutions may add a new program by replicating an existing program to a different location. If this location is new for the institution, then the new location also needs approval. Programs may also be relocated from one location to a different location.

Office of the Chancellor approval is required when a program replication or relocation affects new or existing agreement(s) between institutions, the new location is in the same program service area or within a reasonable commut for a similar program offered by another state college or university or the relocation is from one college or university to another college or university.

4. Reinstated Programs. Reinstated programs are programs whose status is changed from suspended to active. Suspended programs are defined, below, in the program closure transaction type.

5. Off Campus Programs. Off-campus programs are programs located at a site or center that is other than at the awarding college or university campus. Examples include high schools, Indian reservations, state or federal correctional facilities, etc.

6. Reservation Programs. Reservation programs are located on an Indian reservation in Minnesota.

7. Correctional Facilities Program. Correctional facilities programs are offered at a state or federal correctional facility

B. Transaction Types: Program Closure

1. Close. Closed programs are those which are no longer accepting students.

2. Redesign Close. Redesign closed occurs when courses from two or more programs are reconfigured and the result leads to the closure of an existing program.

3. Suspend. Suspended programs are those which are no longer accepting students and for which the institution retains the authority to reopen the program within three years from the initial suspension year. A program suspension may be extended for one additional year.

C. Transaction Types: Program Modifications

1. Redesign. Redesign is a transaction that modifies an attribute of a program. Examples include a change in a program's credit length or the approved program name.

2. Redesign Clone. Redesign clone is a transaction that enables a new program to be created from an existing program. For example, a 30 credit certificate program may be created from an existing 64 credit diploma program.

3. Redesign Close. Redesign close is a transaction which closes a program due to course restructuring among two or more related programs.

4. Emphasis New. Emphasis new is a transaction which adds a curriculum alternative to a program. Emphases may also be called concentrations.

5. Emphasis Change. Emphasis change modifies an attribute of a program emphasis. Examples include credit length or name.

6. Emphasis Close. Emphasis close is a transaction which removes a curriculum alternative from a program.
